Condor offers high risk security courses for individuals faced with direct and indirect extensive threats.

These courses include:

- Personal protection and safety courses for personnel in high risk countries (this includes journalists, reporters, doctors etc.)
- Preventive security measures to neutralize and deter potential threats and attacks
- Specific custom tailored training designed for unconventional high threats

We strongly recommend individuals travelling to high risk areas should receive training that includes the necessary physical, mental, cultural and psychological skills required in order to effectively prevent, deter and/or neutralize existing threats.

These courses are strongly recommended for reporters, international doctors, international professionals and managers of international organizations and individuals travelling and/or residing in high risk countries.
