Women in Security

The modern security apparatus relies more than ever on the operational integration of women as a primary source in the various sectors of security.

Women have become full scale operational channels in security, thereby contributing to this complex apparatus both at micro and macro levels with no limitations to the respective functions they partake.

Condor offers special courses for women interested to develop a professional career in the various security fields. These courses are officially recognized by the Israeli Ministry of Defense.

Condor has all the necessary facilities to instruct courses in Israel. These facilities include vast equipment, firing ranges, training camps, weapons, combat equipment, conference rooms, simulation centers, accommodation and all the logistical infrastructure required.

This list of subjects does not include sub topics and they are not listed in a chronological order:

- Women as an integral structure in the security system
- Unarmed combat specific to security related situations
- Combat shooting
- Self defense specific to women
- Women in executive protection tasks
- Women in intelligence tasks
- Women in surveillance tasks
- Disarmament techniques against different weapons
